

Write a sentence that is a clear example of each type. Then explain what makes it that type.

1. Read this passage carefully. Then answer ALL four questions:

2. Rewrite each sentence in TWO other types. Keep the same topic:

3. Write your own paragraph of 5–7 sentences describing a character who is lost in a forest. You MUST include: one statement, one question, one exclamation and one command. Underline each one and write its type in brackets after it.

4. A student writes: "Run!" Is this a command or an exclamation? Explain your answer carefully. What would change if the writer wrote "Run." instead? What about "What a fast runner you are!"?

5. Explain why punctuation matters to a reader. Use at least TWO of these marks in your explanation: full stop . question mark ? exclamation mark ! capital letter A. Give an example of what happens when each mark is used WRONGLY.
